Workshop & Online Course Guide:

Request a workshop to provide your students with an overview of databases, journals, special collections and other resources tailored to your course. The workshop will provide students with a refresher on basic and advanced researching tools and skills. Your students will also get an Online Course Guide with lists of databases, journals, books, and recommended web resources tailored to your course topics.

Collaborative Teaching Classroom

The Meyer Flex Class is designed to support courses that utilize collaborative pedagogies. The Flex Class features dual interactive whiteboards for whole-class sharing and displays for small-group interactions. In addition, the Flex Class offers collaborative software to facilitate the interchange of digital information. Contact classroom@acomp.stanford.edu to apply to teach in the Flex Class.

Multimedia Support:

The Academic Technology Lab (ATL) is a resource center for faculty, instructors and TAs interested in using multimedia to improve teaching, learning and research at Stanford. Contact acomp-consult@lists.stanford.edu.

CourseWork:

Get assistance from the CourseWork team in making the most of Coursework's features (Roster tool, Forums, Chat Room, Drop Box and more): submit a HelpSU ticket at HelpSU.stanford.edu for assistance, or go directly to coursework.stanford.edu.

Get advice from a librarian listed above on adding links to articles and e-books directly in CourseWork to avoid expensive Course Packs and/or copyright issues.
